Semester 学期	Fall 2022	Language of Instruction 使用言語	ENG&JAP 英&日	Credits 単位	2	hrs/wks 時間数/週	2

【Course Objectives: 授業の到達目標】

This seminar aims to cultivate the students' communication competence that will help them present themselves in convincing manners in culturally diverse social contexts. The specific communication to be focused on is conflict that requires the participants' critical thinking abilities. We will begin with a principle that "being different from others is natural," a concept that is not always endorsed in Japanese society. The students will develop skills based on firm theoretical foundations.

【Course Summary: 授業の概要】

This class will be conducted bi-lingually depending upon the need and appropriateness of the class material and activities. The student's active participation and initiative taking will play a vital role in determining the degree of success in this course. The class will require each student to 1) be curious about and view social phenomena with a critical mind, 2) collect as much information as possible, 3) analyze the information and turn it in the form of intelligence, 4) present the intelligence in a convincing manner, 5) exchange views with one another, and 6) discuss issues in a constructive manner.

【Study Required outside Class (Preparation etc): 事前・事後学習】

The students will be required to be problem-solving minded at all times. A problem is a distance between "what should be" and "what is." They are expected to come to class prepared to discuss a wide range of issues, and review what others presented and argued after each class.
