Question1 | 50points

Explain the core mechanisms of Barbara Fredrickson's "Broaden-and-Build Theory" and discuss its significance in re-evaluating the role of emotions in Second Language Acquisition (SLA).

Question2 | 100points

Critically analyze the primary challenges and limitations in current Second Language Acquisition (SLA) research regarding the "negativity bias" and the study of learner emotions. In your discussion, address how a focus on the reduction of negative traits has led to a "flawed conception of the emotional ecosystem", and explain why traditional research methods are often inadequate for capturing the "highly dynamic nature" of human emotions within the L2 learning process.
